

Scenario #2: "Subbing and Lunch Jack"

You keep your leftovers from your favorite restaurant to enjoy at lunch the next day at work. Before placing the container in the staff fridge, you take a sharpie and write your first name on the box.

You have 3rd period prep and get a call from the secretary to sub on your prep. You support your colleagues and decide to work the prep. During 4th period, right before lunch, an argument breaks out between two students in your class right before the lunch bell rings, which makes you 8 minutes late for lunch. This class is normally your behavior free class, so you were a little thrown off.

You walk to the staff room to grab your lunch, open the refrigerator door, and notice your lunch is missing. You see the empty container with your name on it in the garbage.